Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Memorial Edition of Collected Works of W. J. Fox, Vol. 7: Reports of Lectures at South-Place Chapel, Finsbury Nor let any one say that, not feeling himself identified with this or that particular class, these lessons have for him no moral, and are unconnected with his own particular improvement. I say again, that they must, in their spirit and tendency, contain a lesson for all; not only such as I have just described - the purest and best of all lessons - that of universal charity, but also this, which any one of you, which any man whatever, may learn, - namely, to estimate the temptations of his own state. For if, While I describe poverty as tending to comparative disregard of property, any should say, What have I to do with this? I am neither poor, nor in danger of poverty, I would reply Look a little further into the matter have not you temptations, as well as the poor, to aggression, to extortion, to an injustice which is not the less so because it may be perhaps a legal injustice? And if you find this acting on your mind, then you have to do with the exposition which I make, and may learn from it how far more culpable in your own case is such an overstepping of the boundaries of moral honesty, than it is in others who are exposed to much harder trials, and subjected to far more pernicious influences. The same remark will apply to a review of the circumstances and moral condition of any class. Should it be shown, with reference to the legal or the clerical profession, that there is in these a...
